

FRANK HOWARTH

The Australian Museum has an international reputation in the fields of natural history and indigenous research, community programs and exhibitions. The Museum was established in 1827 and is Australia's first museum, with unique and extensive collections of natural science and cultural artefacts.

As Director, Frank Howarth is passionate about the natural world, and passionate about Sydney and its cultural institutions.

The use of natural science and anthropological collections to inspire people about the natural world and its conservation attracted Frank to working with botanic gardens and museums.

Frank has held positions with the Department of Industrial Development and Decentralisation, NSW Science and Technology Council, Public Service Board, and the Roads and Traffic Authority. In 1996 he became Director and Chief Executive of the Royal Botanic Gardens and Domain Trust. In September 2003 Frank was Executive Director Policy and Science at the NSW Department of Environment and Conservation, before taking up his current role in February 2004, after he attended the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on Biodiversity in Kuala Lumpur.

Frank is keen to ensure that the Australian Museum is influential in biodiversity conservation science and policy, particularly through international collaboration.

Frank will be speaking on 'Museums as store houses of natural and cultural heritage: how to make a difference in the age of climate change and of the internet'.
